private

72 North Gorsuch Road is a brick farmhouse built in a regional style that favors a four-bay main facade. It also has an unusual feature in the north gable end--a round window off-set in the gable. The house retains its early characteristics in its stretcher bond brickwork, six-over-six sash windows, and corbelled cornice. The first story has a modern window in the southernmost two bays of the main facade. The property has several period farm buildings including a bank barn and wagon shed.
